

PENN UNDERGRADUATE LAW JOURNAL

Application for Deputy Blog Manager

Thank you for expressing interest in the Penn Undergraduate Law Journal. We are the University of Pennsylvania's newest undergraduate research journal, and the only undergraduate publication centered on law and the legal system.

PULJ is looking for Deputy Blog Editors to assist in publishing articles to the journal's blog, The Roundtable. Deputy Blog Editors will have the opportunity to familiarize themselves with legalese, legal citation methods, and will read about topics ranging from human rights abuses in developing countries to analyses of the most recent U.S. Supreme Court cases. PULJ is looking for Deputy Blog Editors of all academic backgrounds, from economics and history majors to engineers. Preferential treatment will not be given to applicants majoring in the humanities or social sciences. You do not need any previous experience with editing to apply, and you will not be evaluated on your knowledge of law or the legal system. The only requirement is that you possess a deep and strong interest in the law.

If questions (1) or (3) do not apply to you, please write: Not Applicable. You will not be at a disadvantage for failing to answer questions (1) or (3) or both. Questions should be answered using this form.

Please email your completed application form, resume, and a writing sample (or portion thereof) of no more than 5 pages as .pdf attachments to theroundtable@pulj.org. The subject line should read: Last Name, First Name — Deputy Blog Editor Application.

Every applicant will be notified of his or her application status in early September. If selected for an interview, you will most likely be interviewed once, but an additional round is possible.

Application deadline: September 6 th , 2019 at 11:59 PM

We look forward to reading your application.
